

A Baltimore and Ohio train and was killed. The victim was a well-known contractor of this place and a member of a prominent South Carolina family. He left here Monday for John's Hospital in Baltimore, where he had planned to have an operation performed in the hope of being cured of a disease which had troubled him for a long time. When he left here he seemed perfectly rational. It is thought by those who know him that the brooding over his physical trouble caused him to become unbalanced mentally.

Betha was about forty years old and was unmarried. He is survived by one brother, a merchant at Little Rock, S. C.

Old in B. & O. Employ.
Philadelphia, Pa., March 23.—Conductor O. E. Wellman, who was shot and killed by J. H. Betha today on a Baltimore and Ohio train, near Washington, Del., lived with his wife and four children at 1402 South Fifty-fourth street, this city. He had been in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio Company for nearly twenty-five years, and had been a conductor fifteen years.

Superintendent Voytes said that Wellman was one of the most reliable men on the road.

PEERS STANDING FIRM

Significance of Large Majority for Lord Rosebery's Resolution.

London, March 23.—The large majority by which the House of Lords yesterday carried Lord Rosebery's third resolution, which dealt with the hereditary principle, is rather the registration of public opinion than the forerunner of any effective reform of the second chamber. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 175 to 17.

The debate revealed a strong feeling against the resolution, and Lord Lansdowne had to assure the members toward the close of the debate that the resolution would in no way sacrifice the hereditary principle.

A peer may vote for the resolution, and then vote that every member of this house should have a hereditary title.

Lord Rosebery followed and explained that they were only revealing the manner in which they believed the forms should go. No bill would be submitted; that was for some government of the day to do. This country is not to be reformed by the House of Lords will be undertaken from the Conservative side until a Conservative government is in office.

WILL APPLY TO THE COURTS

Plan of the Local Option Campaign Committee in Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., March 23.—Following a ruling by the board of election commissioners, which made it practically certain that the "dry" petition would be thrown out, the local option campaign committee last night by formal resolution instructed its attorneys to carry the fight to the courts. As a result it will not be known for several days whether Chicago will vote on the "wet and dry" question, and in the meantime all sorts of complications are possible.

The final decision of the election board will be given tomorrow or Friday.

NEW MAIL DEVICE

Snacks Can Now Be Taken Up and Delivered Without Danger.

Washington, March 23.—By a device invented by J. L. Taylor and approved by the Postmaster-General today, mail will be taken up on moving trains and delivered at many places without the danger of carrying the mail. The adoption of the device marks an important step in the movement to equip all railroad mail cars with mail compartments.

The growth of the service and the shortening of schedules has necessitated change of mails without stopping at many offices of considerable size. The new device takes on or discharges mail safely without danger of throwing the snacks under the wheels or derailing the train.

AMUSEMENTS.

Central Grand Concert Company.

To music lovers the notable event of the entire series of entertainment programs arranged for this city by the Radio City Music Company will be the appearance at the Academy of Music this evening of the Central Grand Concert Company, composed of four prominent artists whose names have long been associated with the best in their respective fields.

Does not happen often that four such prominent figures in the musical world are brought together in one organization, and the secret of the company's instantaneous success on the lecture circuits is easily understood by those familiar with its personnel. Maximilian is one of the greatest vocalists of the present generation, and his name alone would ordinarily be sufficient for any program. Miss Edith Adams is a famous contralto, yielding nothing to any other claimant in this field. She has long ago come to be recognized as a master of this noble instrument, hither regarded as the exclusive property of the stronger sex. Adolph Knauer, as pianist, is one of the great artists of the present generation, and his name alone would ordinarily be sufficient for any program. Lying just beneath the outer covering or tissue-skin, is a sensitive membranous flesh in which are imbedded thousands of small blood vessels. It is through these tiny veins and arteries that nutriment is supplied from the blood to the different pores, glands and lymphatics. Thus the skin is kept healthy, and free from all eruption or disease, by pure blood. But when impurities and humors infect the circulation its nourishing properties are diminished and instead of supplying the skin with healthy blood it constantly irritates and diseases the delicate skin pores and glands with sharp urticaria marks. Then the skin tissues become inflamed and ulcerate and some form of skin disease appears on the surface. Applying soothing lotions, salves, etc., to the outer eruptions does not purify the blood and therefore the skin trouble can not be cured in this manner. S. S. It cools the acid-heated circulation, builds it up to its normal strength and thickness, multiplies its rich, nutritious corpuscles, and adds to its purity in every way. News of Manchester

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, 1102 Hull Street.

With several of his supporters around him, David L. Pulliam addressed a fair-sized crowd of colored voters last night in Cunningham's Hall. His remarks were mostly repetitions of the Anti-Annexation League's platform, except where now and then he went more into explanation to bring his audience more fully into the attention of these present. He reiterated the previous speeches of his partisans in belittling Richmond's present condition, and attached great importance to the alleged splendid condition of Manchester. The negroes were generally silent; frequently, however, they expressed their approval of the speaker's statements.

In reference to the wards and their wants, he said: "I can see them scrambling for it, and the little Washington Ward of Manchester, having no power or control. What has a ward in Richmond that has a colored person in it ever gotten? When you surrender self-government you surrender the right to have a colored person in it. It is once he does you can't get a divorce." In speaking of Justice Crutcher's court he said: "Once upon a time, he gets you boys." He declared that Richmond could meet her obligation, and next year would be in debt $615,000. He agreed with "Burlie" Anderson's statement that Richmond was practically "bankrupt."

"Richmond needs Manchester much more than Manchester needs Richmond."

DEATH CLAIMS

ALEX. DELANEY

Man Who Helped Manufacture Guns for Confederacy Had Unique Career.

Alexander Delaney, Superintendent of Pump-houses of the Richmond Water Department, died yesterday afternoon at 3:55 o'clock at his home, 2316 Grove Avenue, in the eightieth year of his age. Mr. Delaney had one of the most unique and interesting careers of any man in Richmond. He was a veteran of the Civil War, and had been associated with the Tredegar and other iron works during the war period, and having founded the plant which later grew into the Richmond Iron Works, an American Locomotive Company. He was a native of Dalbeath, Scotland. He is survived by three daughters—Alice, Marie and Catherine B. Delaney. He married, October 19, 1868, Miss Eliza Aherne, of this city, daughter of John and Mary Aherne. Mrs. Delaney died August 12, 1893.

Mr. Delaney was brought to this country when a boy, and spent practically all his life in Richmond. With the exception of a few years of his boyhood with relatives in Massachusetts, he studied mechanical engineering, and was recognized as an eminently efficient in his profession, and had been for many years a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Made Guns for Confederacy.

When the War Between the States broke out in 1861, Mr. Delaney was superintendent of the Tredegar Works. He resigned at once and enlisted for active service, but was immediately detached by the Secretary of War and appointed superintendent of the Tredegar plant of this city, which was operated by the Confederate government during the war in the manufacture of ordnance, guns and ammunition. He remained in charge of the plant throughout the war, explaining many facts in view of the restricted conditions and the lack of appliances. The machinery and armor plating of several of the vessels of the Confederate navy were manufactured under his supervision.

After the war Mr. Delaney became a partner in an iron works under the name of Ebbetts & Delaney, to which Colonel W. L. Tanner was later added. The firm becoming Tanner, Ebbetts & Delaney. Later, Mr. Ebbetts retired, and Messrs. Tanner and Delaney organized the Metropolitan Iron Works, at that time one of the largest iron working plants in the South, employing 225 men. Its plant was located on Canal street, between Sixth and Seventh, and was totally destroyed by fire on the morning of November 11, 1881. Later, Mr. Delaney was in the iron business in Lynchburg, of Petersburg. Following the fire Colonel Tanner and Mr. Delaney formed the Tanner-Delaney Engine Company, the forerunner of the Richmond Locomotive and Machine Company, which has grown into the Richmond branch of the American Locomotive Company. Mr. Delaney retired from the engine company in May, 1887, and always carried a handsome gold watch which was presented to him by the employees of the plant on his retirement.

Mr. Delaney was the first superintendent of the engine plant, and laid off and began the erection of the present works at the north end of Seventh street.

On March 1, 1895, he was elected Engineer of Pump-houses of the City Water Department, a position which he held with great fidelity until his death. Colonel Tanner, his old business associate, was a member of the Water Committee by which he was elected, and the session is described as having been one of the most stormy in the history of the city. At that time he was a member of the firm of Chamblin, Delaney & Scott, iron workers, at Sixteenth and Broad streets, which since his retirement has developed into the Richmond Iron Works.

In his service to the Water Department he was peculiarly successful and had several times been commended by the Mayor in annual messages. In charge of the pumping plants of the city it was his task to keep the city reservoirs full of water at all times, and in all conditions of the river. He supervised the recent installation of electrically driven pumps, and was greatly interested in the success of the clear water plant, with the operation of which, however, he was only indirectly connected.

Funeral arrangements for the funeral have not been completed as yet.

POLITICAL DRIFT IS AWAY FROM G. O. P.

Democrats Wonderfully Encouraged by Recent Events in Republican Camp.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Washington, D. C., March 23.—The drift politically, at this time, is away from the Republican party. The election of a Democrat to succeed William C. Lovering, in the Fourteenth Massachusetts, has boosted Leader Champ Clarke and his colleagues wonderfully. The first sign of Democratic gain came from the Sixth Missouri, Judge David A. De Armond's old district. This was followed by the battle between the Regulars and the Insurgents in the Republican camp, and now the victory in Senator Lodge's State, General Hitchcock, the political leader of the administration, is charged with taking short cuts to make sure of delegates to the next national convention. All of these changes are boding up to worry the big chief, Democratic leaders here have not been aggressive, but it begins to look as if
